This two story with attic gabled roofed house is one of the tiny alley houses that once served as homes for the servants of the more well-to-do inhabitants of Montgomery and William Streets. This house was originally only two stories in height; the attic story and wooden cornice were added later.

The house is two and a half stories in height, 13' wide, and occupies a lot 43' deep. The house is two rooms deep and there is a one story high, one bay deep rear addition. An arched alleyway runs along the west side of the house. The gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. There is a simple brick cornice surmounted by a deep wooden crown molding. A chimney is located along the east side of the house on the rear roof gable. The house is constructed in running bond.

The door and window openings of the first and second floors have segmentally arched lintels with solid tympanums; the third floor attic windows have flat wood lintels. All of the sills are wood. The window openings of the first two floors are filled with 1/1 sash. The attic floor windows have a single pane of glass each. A late, panel door is set beneath a single light transom, the transom area filled in with aluminum. The house sits on a low basement, the entrance being reached by two brick steps.
